

IDAHO'S WINE INDUSTRY:

RIPE
FOR growth

Idaho's wine industry has proven its resiliency and continues to grow in quality and recognition. With a rapidly increasing population and a burgeoning tourism destination, Idaho offers ample opportunities for the grape-growing and winemaking industry to flourish. The success of this industry contributes significantly to Idaho's agriculture, business community, and overall economy.

In 2022...

70 Wineries

up 35%

from 52 wineries in 2017

5 Cideries

3 AVAs

Winery Workforce Increased

360 workers in wineries

180 workers in restaurants, retail outlets, and wholesalers

3,100 total jobs impacted

Wine visitors spent an estimated $173.1 million

890,000 visitors that traveled to Idaho incorporated a winery or tasting room into their 2022 trip

258,000 cases produced in 2022

$314.2 million total economic impact of the wine industry to the state

$6,664,128 wine excise tax collected in 2022

Average tons harvest in 2022 - 3,100 tons

For every $1 of excise tax-based investment was associated with $274 in business revenues related to wine production across the state of Idaho.

Idaho wine's current strengths lie in two major categories:

Recent growth

The Idaho wine industry has continued to grow not only in size, but in recognition, positioning the industry well to continue to build on its recent success.

Unique tourism offerings

In part driving this recent success, Idaho wine provides unique tourism offerings through the combination of urban winery areas and more traditional rural winery locations. The urban winery scene in Boise and Garden City allows visitors and residents to visit several different tasting rooms near the area's outdoor activity offerings. The vastness of the state also provides two different rural winery settings as northern Idaho offers cooler temperatures in a more mountainous and forested region, while southern Idaho provides high desert landscape.

Growth Opportunities

Future opportunities for the Idaho wine industry are attributed to:

- Population growth and increasing demand.
- New generations of wine consumers.
- Continued tourism growth.

